Lard Wins Two.

Lard had two closer matches, both of which he won handily. In the first round he beat Thomas M. Sherman, Yohnundasis, son of the Vice President, by 2 up and 1 to play, in the second round. He won from J. C. Davidson, Columbia, by the same score.

Sherman started his match with Lard as if he would run away with it, gaining a lead of three up at the end of the sixth hole, having played the first six holes in one under par.

Sherman lost his steadiness after this, and overanxiety affected his playing, so that Lard cut down his lead to 1 up at Start Star FIRST RACE-Four and a half furlongs. Wenna, Time, 1:41 3-5. Malvina also ran.

HAHN'S "TRI-WEAR"

Men's Famous $3.50 Low-Shoes

What is it that you most require of your shoes? STYLE? COMFORT? WEAR? You'll get all three of these most important shoe-essentials in "TRI-WEAR" SHOES.

This season's styles are a complete departure from those of previous years. They include the low cut 2 or 3 eyelet pumps, as well as less extreme Blucher and Oxford Ties and Low Button Shoes. Trimmed up with large or small tip and quarter perforations-or perfectly plain and simple for those who prefer it.

"TRI-WEAR" Shoes fit every part of the foot and are cooler than other shoes because of their CHROME TANNED uppers and OAK BARK TANNED soles.

And as for WEAR! We need only quote one man's words-we hear similar expressions almost every day: "I have been wearing 'TRI-WEAR' SHOES for 16 years.

PLAN TO BOOST CITY

Members of Advertising Committee of Chamber Meet.

MANY SCHEMES ARE OFFERED

Three Points Upon Which Campaign to Attract Visitors to Capital Are Discussed-Joseph Strasburger Suggests Autumn Carnival on Line of New Orleans Mardt Gras.

Washington, the nation's city, and Washington, the business city, are concurrent propositions, which, if far-sighted business men have their way, will be aggressively placed before the people of the United States.

The enthusiasm displayed by the newly formed "advertising committee" of the Chamber of Commerce, which held its second meeting last evening, is the pledge of the success of a movement to give Washington its rightful prestige as a business center-a movement which involves civic pride, commercial judgment, and a utilization of Washington's unequaled opportunity for expansion as the Capital of the country.

The meeting last night brought many an "advertising plan" to the surface, founded upon the experience of other progressive cities, and scores of them will be given extended consideration before word is given to "go ahead."

Three Points of Appeal. There are three points of view upon which the advertising campaign will be based-Washington as an ideal place of residence, Washington as a logical wholesale and manufacturing center, and Washington as a central point for retail purchasers. The latter will be the most direct point of appeal from the merchants' standpoint, and it is probable the first efforts at publicity will be along

As chairman of the committee, Isaac Gans presided at last night's meeting. The discussion of the campaign was entirely informal. Joseph Strasburger pre-sented the idea of a great autumn festival, on lines of the New Orleans Mardi Gras, as a means of attracting visitors. An automobile parade, a feature entirely new to the city, would prove a potent attraction. Mr. Strasburger believes the returns would be definite and compensatory.

He also advocated a system of advertising cards, stating briefly a few cogent arguments and telling facts, to be inserted in every business letter leaving the confines of the city.

Methods of reaching the great rural population around Washington, of presenting business arguments with system-atic persuasion to them, were advocated. The committee makes a public appeal for suggestions on this point

Civic spirit must be aroused to the vital nature of the campaign, declared all the speakers. A co-operation and unity of all tion of a handsome cup bear the burden. When the committee urge the necessity of a united front on
